616 New Styles, Now $18

616 new styles added this week to our REMNANT SALE assortment—24 that were $50 and 257 that were $25, with intermediate grades. Enough for 856 suits.

Suit to Measure, $18

Broadway & 9th St.

the "battleship" gray is said to be more in demand for older women. Retailers have also looked good orders in "army" blue in military cut suits.

Dye materials arriving in this country last week were valued at over $100,000. The situation, while not so acute as some would make it, is still bad. One finishing house recently tried to buy some Beta naphthol, and after a week's search found just one barrel of it available. For this $140 a pound was paid, although 10 cents a pound was the price before the war. Aniline salts are selling at 60 cents, as against 10 cents a pound a year ago. These advances are exceptional, in most cases there having been no new arrivals of supplies from Germany since the war started. At present a fair amount of aniline coloring material is on the way to this country.

The largest woolen goods manufacturer in placed women's wear capes, jackets and broadcloths for the fall season on the market yesterday. Two weeks ago fancy lines were opened by this company. Prices for the new lines were advanced about the same as the rest of the market where they are the same, but many new numbers are included in the opening this year. Buying of lines which have been in the trade in the past several years, and if the new lines do not bring any better volume of business it is believed that the opening of many lines of suitings will be held back even further, although better grade suitings lines should have been before the trade long ago.

COST OF UNFINISHED WORSTEDS HIGHER

Advance Caused by Increase in Prices of Yarns—Buyers of Serges Confused.

Several advances in prices for unfinished worsted lines were made by the leading seller in the men's wear woolen goods market yesterday. The increase amounted to 5 cents a yard above the opening quotations for the fall season. Business on unfinished worsteds has not been large for the market as a whole, but yarns have advanced since the start of the fall season for goods, and some of the worsted goods lines which have not yet been marked up will probably go higher soon.

Serges have not been moved from opening prices, but the market has been opened for only limited business and were soon withdrawn owing to a shortage of needed grades of wool. On other lines lower grade wools than were in use last year have figured in some of the offerings. Furthermore, there were some buyers who took large amounts of stock goods in serges, which have been left over from last year, before the opening of the new season, and such buyers have been able to get the best goods possible to fit in with the prices of their lines of men's suits. This market has been thrown back on the hands of manufacturers through cancellations of duplicate business for late deliveries by clothing manufacturers.

As a result of these confusing conditions, the buyers who have done so far on many lines of serges have been to try to get the best goods possible to fit in with the prices of their lines of men's suits. This market has been thrown back on the hands of manufacturers through cancellations of duplicate business for late deliveries by clothing manufacturers.

Overcoming sales have been surprisingly heavy so far in the fall season, in view of the general hand-to-mouth buying in suitings. The higher priced serges and unfinished worsteds have been slow, but some lines selling below $14 a yard, down to the cheapest, have had comparatively a fairly good sale.
